

Greetings Liberty Lovers and Friends of Stacy Lynne,

On Monday, May 21, 2011 I drove up to Ft. Collins for the hearing that was on the docket for Courtroom 2A under the heading of Pappenheim v Lynne. Interestingly enough there was no "Pappenheim" present, nor was a certain Amy Antommara. Instead of contempt the hearing was vacated and scheduled for another day. Antommara told the Magistrate (via a broadcasted phone call from the bench) that she had sent an email to Stacy's attorney and the court but obviously the confused Magistrate didn't get notice either. At least it was on the docket for Courtroom 2A or we might have thought we had entered the Twilight Zone. I suppose Judge Field will say "Oops" for setting the hearing without all the proper documentation. Kind of like Sheriff Justin Smith saying "Oops"...

At first those of us there were taken aback and wondered "how can they do this"? (After all, what if it had been Stacy who didn't show up? ha ha - we all know the answer to that)

Some of us speculated that sweet specimen of womanhood, Amy Antommara, was probably sitting in her office cackling. A slight grumble accompanied the thought. Stacy was apologetic for hauling us all into LCJC for a vacated hearing. That stopped me cold. She had no reason to apologize (but of course that is Stacy's way) and we have no reason to grumble. Okay, we DO have reason, but grumbling in this case is a waste of energy.

When these things happen we are best served by not allowing others to push the buttons that make us mad. I visualize a big red button (kind of like Staples' Easy button) that "they" like to hit to tick us off, throw Stacy off balance or just because. There is a wire that supplies power to the button. I visualize taking scissors and snipping that wire, cutting off the power. Now, no matter how many times "they" try to hit the button "they" no longer have the ability to surprise me or tick me off. And I save my energy for the long haul. By the way, I'm thankful for all the wonderful people who are supportive of Stacy and have not tired in that support - because it inspires me.

We want to see Jaden go home. That is where he belongs, and the way he was ripped from his mom is evil and just plain wrong. Any idiot (that doesn't hide behind the Corrupt Court System) can see it is.

On Mother's Day weekend Harmony House called Stacy when she was a minute away to pick Jaden up. They told her the visit was cancelled because "Jaden was throwing a fit and crying and saying he didn't want to go." Stacy got quite a different story from Jaden when she finally got a call from him.

I find it, well, I would say ironic but that word just doesn't work here but it is amazing that Judge Field never once asked Jaden about going to live with his Dad. But the Harmony House is free to defy Court Ordered Visitation... based on what they say Jaden says.

No matter what Stacy Lynne does they are determined to nail her, but no matter what anyone on the other side does - it's A-OK. SEE A PATTERN HERE?

In summary I am more determined than ever to stay by Stacy's side and offer her support. I long for that day that Jaden comes home and what I perceive to be God's will is done.

I hope that everyone feels the same and hasn't lost heart in this battle for Truth and Justice. After all, when we have those on our side it is merely a matter of time - as long as we don't let them push our "Hope " button and extinguish the flame.

Are you IN?

Jeanne Hines
